

CONGRESSWOMAN LINDA SÁNCHEZ

PRESENTS:

“An Artistic Discovery”

The Annual High School Congressional Art Competition

Winning pieces will be selected by a panel of local art experts. Artists may create a piece especially for the competition or submit a previously created work.

The overall winner will have the honor of attending a ceremony in the U.S. Capitol and having his or her work on display in the Capitol for a year. Pieces are viewed by thousands of people and international dignitaries each year in one of the main corridors of the Capitol.

Congresswoman Linda Sánchez meets with 2006 Art Competition Participant.

The Congresswoman will proudly hang the works of the second and third place finishers in her Congressional Office in Washington, DC and in her local Congressional Office in Cerritos. She will also host a reception in our local area where all submissions will be displayed for public view and students will be recognized and honored for their talent and hard work.
